ATLANTIC CITY

FOREIGNER

ATLANTIC CITY (October 2, 2019) - Lou Gramm was hospitalized at the Unity Hospital at Park Ridge in Rochester, NY last week with a severe respiratory infection, dehydration and fatigue. He had hoped to be ready to appear during the FOREIGNER Double Vision: Then & Now show at Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Atlantic City this Friday night, October 4 in Hard Rock Live at Etes Arena. Unfortunately, at his follow-up appointment today, his doctor pronounced him unable to perform at these shows.

The FOREIGNER Double Vision: Then & Now show at Hard Rock Atlantic City will go on as scheduled with the other original members as they join founding member, songwriter and lead guitarist Mick Jones and the current lineup of FOREIGNER.

Mick Jones said, "We will all miss Lou at our upcoming shows and we join all his family, friends, and fans in wishing him a speedy recovery."

Singer Lou Gramm stated, "I'm very disappointed about not being able to perform at the FOREIGNER Double Vision: Then & Now show at Hard Rock Atlantic City for all the fans. My doctor insists if I pushed myself to perform, I would be in big trouble. So, doctor's orders, I ride the bench. Rock on!"

Tickets are still available for Friday night's performance at hardrockhotelatlanticcity.com.
